"I just think about all the people that weren’t believed, or the people who haven’t been believed, or the people who are afraid to speak up because they don’t think they will be believed... I don’t know what turn my life would have taken if people hadn’t believed in me when I said that something happened.

Statistics show that rapists don’t just attack once — many re-offend, often multiple times.

IT’S A FRIGHTENING EQUATION:
ONE FAILED RESPONSE CAN MEAN ADDITIONAL VICTIMS.

Start by Believing is designed to change this.

When a patient tells me their stomach hurts, I begin from that assumption — while remaining open to alternative possibilities. Similarly, when a patient says they were sexually assaulted, I begin from that starting point.

Victims of sexual assault deserve to be treated with compassion and respect — instead of communicating the message that they are not believed. This undermines the ability of criminal justice professionals to conduct a thorough interview, which then limits the chance of successfully investigating and prosecuting the case.

Investigators who start by believing are able to conduct a more thorough investigation, which is the only way to include or exclude suspects based on the evidence.

Two key responses that have a positive effect on survivors:

(1) Being believed, and
(2) Having someone to talk to

Sexual assault victims describe positive responses as:

- Being listened to
- Being provided with emotional support
- Not being blamed
- Being encouraged to talk about the sexual assault, and
- Having a support provider who is not distracted with other things

Start by Believing FAQs

Q. What is Start by Believing?

A. Start by Believing was created to end the cycle of silence and change the way society responds to sexual assault. The campaign focuses specifically on changing the response to survivors of sexual assault by expressing belief and support, rather than doubt, shame, or blame.

Q. Why do we need to Start by Believing?

A. Sexual assault victims often face reactions of doubt and blame when they report the crime or reach out for help. These reactions can increase the trauma survivors experience and decrease the likelihood they will pursue justice and healing. This also means that perpetrators are not held accountable for their crimes, and they remain free to hurt more people.

Q. Is Start by Believing appropriate for criminal justice professionals?

A. Start by Believing is appropriate for criminal justice professionals because case outcomes will only change when police and prosecutors start from the presumption that a sexual assault report has merit, and then follow the evidence through the course of a fair, impartial, and thorough investigation.

Q. What impact does Start by Believing have on survivors?

A. Survivors often first turn to friends and family members, and if their response is disbelief or blame, it can increase the trauma and reduce the chances a victim will report or seek other support services.

Research shows the two things that have the most positive impact on survivors are: (1) having someone to talk to, and (2) being believed. In other words, Start by Believing.

What to Say

What to Say

START BY BELIEVING

"I believe you."
"I'm sorry this happened."
"I am here for you."

BE SUPPORTIVE

"You can tell me as much, or as little as you want."
"It's not your fault."
"I'm glad you told me. I'm so proud of you."

ASK HOW YOU CAN HELP

"What can I do to support you?"
"I can stay with you tonight. Would that help?"
"Do you want me to go with you to the hospital or police station?"

AVOID WHY QUESTIONS

Even with the best of intentions, "why" questions can sound accusatory and make survivors blame themselves.

10 Reasons to Start by Believing

1. Reasons to Start by Believing
   I told my mom that I was sexually assaulted by someone we knew, and she immediately started defending him and questioning me. Never once did she support me or ask me if I was okay.
   - Amy

2. Reasons to Start by Believing
   Most victims of sexual assault never report to law enforcement, often because of the responses they receive from friends and family members.

3. Reasons to Start by Believing
   When my two siblings told me they had been sexually molested by my father, I took my father’s side. All these years later, I realize that I had been in the best position to get them help if I had just started by believing.
   - Tori

Reasons to Start by Believing

My daughter Jenny was raped by a serial predator. It should never have happened. Several years earlier the perpetrator was caught assaulting a woman, and he was acquitted because “the jury didn’t like the victim.” Thousands of lives were impacted by one jury’s presumption that a victim was lying. We can change. We can help victims recover and put away predators if we simply start by believing victims who have the courage to come forward.
